P3 is available to early-career, assistant professor faculty members in the Academic Health Center preparing their first K- or R-series NIH grant proposal. It is a small (10-12 members), highly interactive, peer grant-writing group that meets 11 times over four months. Each session requires participants to prepare drafts of their proposal sections and critique one another’s written material. Because writing begins immediately, P3 is only suitable for faculty whose project aims and approaches are reasonably well conceptized and who are truly “ready to write.”

To be considered for registration, faculty must meet all of the following criteria:

- Assistant Professor (any track); may consider early-career Associate Professor
- Preparing NIH (or other agency using SF 424 format) K- or R-series; in development with mentor
- Planned submission date for June/July 2018 NIH deadline
- Commit to full 11 session program; attendance is required for first session
- Complete SF 424 specific aims page
- Complete NIH-format biographical sketch
- Have not previously completed the P3 workshop; previous K-participants may be included but will be wait listed following “first time” applicants.

Please fill out the application below. Availability for P3 is extremely limited. At the end of the form you will be prompted to upload your current NIH biosketch and Specific Aims section. Clinicians: Please make tentative clinical obligation schedule arrangements now.

Incomplete applications will not be considered.

For more information please contact the Medical School Office of Faculty Affairs.

Winter 2018 Application – APPLY HERE

The AHC P3 Directors/Mentors are:

Matt Kushner, PhD (Dept. of Psychiatry)
Diane Treat-Jacobson, PhD (School of Nursing)
Clifford Steer, MD (Dept. of Medicine)
Subree Subramanian, PhD (Dept. of Surgery)
Kristin Hogquist, PhD (Dept. of Laboratory Medicine and Pathology)
John Grabowski, PhD (Dept. of Psychiatry)